THE Committee of the above have great pleasure in notifying that the HONGKONG RANGE situated immediately in rear of the Racquet Court and Gymnasium, is now open to Members daily from 6 A.M. till dusk. It comprises ranges at 100, 150, and 200 yards, while a range at 500 yards is in course of preparation, and may daily be expected to be ready for use.
The Butts being constructed on the latest principles of safety and accuracy of marking, each hit will be shown by means of a Disc, and its exact position denoted, while by a simple contrivance only one bullet mark remains on the Target at a time, thereby avoiding all disputes. The following will be the Discs used:—
White Disc,.....Bull's Eye.
Red " .....Centre.
Black " .....Outer.
A Bullseye is marked by raising the Red Disc up and down three times in front of the Target and then obliterating the shot mark.
Members are requested to abstain from firing until the two large Red Flags are hoisted by the markers on the flagstaffs, one above the firing butt, and the other on the hill above the Scandal Point Road.
The Association in addition to the use of ranges at Hongkong and Kowloon presents the following advantages to Members wishing to perfect themselves in the art of Rifle Shooting.
Government Ammunition can be drawn not exceeding one hundred (100) rounds at a time for the use of Members only, by application to the Secretary, provided always that three days' notice is given by the applicant.
Rifles and Ammunition can be left, after firing, at the store room of the Association (into the Head Quarters of the H. K. R. V.) and on payment of $1.50 per month (in advance) will be cleaned and kept ready for use.
The H. K. R. A. will not however be in any way responsible for the same.
Gentlemen wishing to join can do so by inscribing their names to the lists in the Hongkong Club, or at Messrs. LAND, CRAWFORD & Co. Annual subscription up to November 1st, 1867, $6.
The Kowloon Ranges will be closed until further notice, but an application for their use signed by six Members, stating the days on which they will require the targets, will be laid before the Committee, but it is requested that such application be not made unless the use of the range is urgently required.

HONGKONG, JANUARY 28, 1867.

PETER the great was an ancient Emperor of Russia. When he was ten years old, his father, ALEXIS, the Emperor died, and when he was sixteen, he was acknowledged to be an Emperor by the Russians. During that time, Russia had scarcely any book, and the inhabitants were very ignorant. Thus, when PETER began his reign, he was very anxious to get his people to be well educated, and to trade with other nations. He selected a number of young men, and sent them to other nations to learn the important and useful arts. There was nothing which he so anxiously desired his people to get as a ship. He fortunately got the wise and well-educated man, Le FORT, to assist to do what he intended. He accordingly went to Holland with Le FORT, and stopped in Saardam to learn the ship-building. He did his work so anxiously as if he had to earn his bread. He went to other countries to learn some other useful things, he then returned to Russia. On his return, he taught his people how to build and navigate ships, and how to cultivate their land. He translated many books from other languages into Russian to teach his people to read. He caused his people to build the large and important city of Petersburgh, which is now the capital of Russia."

Our readers may not immediately apprehend the reasons which have induced us to refresh their memories by these remarks on the career of PETER the Great. We think, however, that the little essay is worthy of being printed by every newspaper in China, and by many others at home. Take it all in all, it is one of the most remarkable productions in the language, for it is the work, the bona fide work untouched by any hand but the author's, of a Chinese boy in the Central School. It is one of the exercises in English composition written at the recent examinations, without any reference to books, by the native scholars of the upper school in Gough Street, under the management of Mr. FREDERICK STEWART. We are assured that no lesson on the reign of PETER the Great had been read in the school for two months previously to the examination, so that the exercises do not alone test the knowledge which the boys possess of the English language, but their recollection of historical facts as well. The prize essay given above is certainly the best of the collection, with regard both to the composition, and to the spelling in which there is no fault, but there are a great many others which are nearly as good, and the writing in all cases is perfectly legible and regular. Few persons we imagine, will have suspected that results like these were obtained at the Central School, and certainly they justify the expansion of the operations there carried on. It has been proved that Chinese boys are as capable of receiving instruction as those of European parentage. Our friend, the historian of PETER the Great for instance, has emancipated his mind from the trammels of Asiatic superstition and has himself in "the foremost files of time," with the rest of us. Another year we shall have him quoting Tennyson, or discussing the theology of "Eose Homo." The worst of it is of course that the boys of the Central School no matter how its field of operations may be enlarged, can only after all be as a drop in the ocean of Celestial ignorance, and that no effect which will ever be appreciated by any European now in China is likely to be wrought through its instruction on the Chinese mind generally, but the most that human agency can do towards any undertaking of great magnitude is to tend towards the production of good results, and although the efforts being made, may as the GOVERNOR says be disinterested enough inasmuch as no personal profit is likely to accrue to those who make them, there cannot be a doubt that their tendency so far as it goes is in a good direction. Moreover there may be some immediate results obtainable from the Central School, for the colony cannot but benefit by the thorough education of a number of Chinese lads in English. They will become qualified to act as interpreters at any rate, and to take intermediate situations in which they will be of great use to their employers. The records, preserved in the school show the occupations which the boys who have left it during the past year have taken up. The Civil Service of their own Government appears to be very much in favor as a great many boys have entered the Imperial customs. The colony does not immediately benefit from their education, but indirectly it is likely to have a good effect on commerce if the native functionaries in the Custom houses are men of Western cultivation, and enlarged mind. A good many boys have gone into Chinese Hongs, and some into the service of the Hongkong Government.

At the various branch schools established in the colony, Chinese only is taught. It is a principle with the directors of Government education here, that no boy shall be instructed in English till he is moderately well educated in his own language. There is a certain amount of force in this system, but it may perhaps be carried too far. Even at the Central School half the time of the boys in the highest classes is still devoted to Chinese. The results which are achieved in English education are achieved, in other words, by the application of half their time, and the question inevitably arises, what is they're to show for the other half? That a knowledge of reading and writing in their own language is absolutely necessary for the boys, is not to be denied or questioned, but this could no doubt be attained with the expenditure of very much less time than that which is given to Chinese in the Central School. The only motive for carrying on a Chinese system of education further than is necessary to make the boys read and write correctly, is so far as we can imagine, that of preventing them from appearing ignorant amongst their own countrymen. For its own sake Chinese education has been shown to be absolutely worthless and it seems a pity that when boys have once mastered the English language sufficiently to possess a key to all the wealth of western knowledge and literature they should be made to spend time in beating into their brains the crude and wearisome common places, of that feeble Tupperian philosophy which the sages of China have bequeathed to the world. They are now promised the necessary apparatus for carrying on those studies in natural science which are always so fascinating to boys, and it is to be hoped at least that the time to be devoted to them may be clipped from Mencius and Confucius and not from geography, history, and arithmetic.

The publicity which has been given by the examination which have just been held and by the speech of the GOVERNOR, to the results of Government education in Hongkong so far as it has gone, and to the efforts which it is intended to make in future, can scarcely fail, we should think to rouse the interest of the community generally, and we may expect to see the work of Chinese education advance very noticeably from this time forward. Of course if it is to be carried on on a large scale, it will require a larger subsidy than it receives at present, and as the GOVERNOR says the finances of the colony are not on a footing which quite justifies the Government in incurring additional expenditure. Still we would hesitate to urge any appeals to private benevolence. If people who may be interested in this work choose to send sums of money to the Government to be added to the annual grant towards Chinese education well and good, but this is a public work, and there is this peculiar reason in favor of drawing the necessary funds from the public revenue, that in this way the Chinese population of the island, as well as the European, bears its share of the outlay. It is by a manifestation of interest in this subject, and by approval of any additions to the grant for education which the Government may think proper to make, that the public influence may more properly be brought to bear on the work rather than by the worn out machinery of subscription lists.

The Wreck of the "Corea."

Intelligence was received on Saturday by the Formosa, that the missing boat from the wreck of the Corea had been heard of. The crew consisting of 3 Chinese, 1 Malay, and 14 Japanese were at Warli, a place about 42 miles from Swatow; all well.

Distribution of Prizes at the Central School.

On Friday last the Governor presided at the annual distribution of prizes at the Central School in Gough Street, which took place in presence of several visitors and proved to be a very interesting ceremony. The examinations have been going on in the school during the last two months and the prize lists had of course been already made out, but to show the progress which had been made by the boys, a brief examination was held by the Governor. He was asked to choose any passage from a lesson book on Geography for the pupils to read. This was read, sentence by sentence down the class, and the boys not alone in many cases read with ease and accurate pronunciation, but proved on being questioned that they fully understood the passage and were able to convey the sense of what they read in other words. They wrote to dictation on their slates, and in a great many cases the exercises were written in a clear intelligible hand without a fault in spelling. They worked out a sum in vulgar fractions with promptitude, and certainly astonished the visitors by their proficiency. The examination papers were shown, and some of the original exercises in composition proved that the writers really possessed a thorough knowledge of English.

The GOVERNOR said that before going on with the distribution of the prizes, he would like to say a few words about what the Government intended to do in connexion with the school, and first he thought that without giving undue praise it would be only fair to say how much reason there was to be satisfied with the progress which had been made. There were visitors present, many of whom were fully competent to judge, and they would see from what had taken place that this was not merely a school in name. He noticed with great pleasure the generally creditable appearance of the scholars, and this was not only observable to-day for he had often come to visit the school unexpectedly, and had found the same neatness and cleanliness, and attention to discipline, which he had found that day, when he was expected. Indeed he understood that there was less trouble in maintaining discipline here amongst the two hundred and odd boys who belonged to the school than there would be with half that number at home. He was not prepared to say whether this was in itself a good thing; he was not one of those who objected to occasional boisterous outbreaks but at any rate it would be very improper for the Governor to say that he was not well satisfied with seeing such good discipline preserved. With reference to the subjects studied in the school, he thought they must all be satisfied that sufficient attention was paid to the ordinary branch of an English education, but at the same time he would like to see some other subjects introduced. He would like to see a little more opportunity given for learning something of those important sciences which had hitherto to a great extent been ignored in China. He did not see why it would be impossible to have a small laboratory established, in which chemical experiments might be carried on. A new world of ideas might thus be opened to the students. Electrical experiments might also be given and without any great addition to the cost of the school, it would be possible to exhibit something of those natural phenomena which appeal to the eye and awaken the curiosity of youth. He hoped that if the government provided the necessary apparatus, members of the community would come forward and assist the school by giving lectures. He had already mentioned this matter to Mr. Stewart who thought that the idea ought to be carried out. He thought therefore he might safely promise the boys that before many months were over, these lectures on chemistry and electricity would be introduced, partly as a recreation and partly as an addition to their studies. The first cost of this would not be great. Certainly the financial position of the colony was not one which encouraged the government to undertake new expenses, but still he thought it was better not to shut up a good thing on a small scale had to be done but to do it at once. The cost of the government schools during the past year had been $9,600, of which $1,231 had been contributed by the scholars so that only $8,469 had actually been spent by the government. Perhaps that amount might not seem great if it were compared with the magnitude of the Chinese population here, but the world request the Chinese community to remember that what had been done was a disinterested effort on the part of the government for the benefit of what was a foreign race although under a British flag. He was perfectly satisfied that the expenditure was useful, and one from which in the future mutual benefits would be reaped. At present he did not see any boy in the school who was not of Chinese descent but he would like it to be understood that all the Government schools are perfectly open to the children of other than Chinese parents and he would be glad to see them made sufficiently attractive to draw in the children of Portuguese and Hindoos. He would like to see a little more amalgamation of races. It had been almost a decision of the former Board of Education that the schools should be reserved for Chinese children only, and he was anxious therefore that it should be known, the school was no longer shut to others. The principles on which it was conducted were not exclusive; it was open alike to all who would conform to the rules. He confessed that he should like to see a few more maps about the school. He was surprised there were so few, as it was highly desirable to take advantage of the faculty of youth to remember facts, taught by the eye, the most useful medium for acquiring a knowledge of Geography. He would like also to see the school provided with a pair of globes, at all events with one large Terrestrial globe. There might be some there who still retained an idea that China was the centre of the world. They may at least have heard their fathers or grandfathers express that idea, and at all events it was held by some of their countrymen, though he hoped the boys of the central school had advanced far enough to have abandoned that superstition. In conclusion he said that he would engage before many months were over that they should have the opportunity of enjoying those elementary lectures of which he had already spoken.

He then proceeded to distribute the prizes amongst which were a silver watch, a case of mathematical instruments, and a considerable number of pencil-cases and books from the school fund. Also a silver watch presented by Mr. C. C. Smith, and a case of mathematical instruments presented by Mr. Stewart the head master. In the course of distributing their prizes,—

The GOVERNOR said that he should like to give a prize for the next annual distribution himself. He would say $25, to be laid out in any prize which the head master chose, for the greatest general attention and diligence displayed throughout the year. This prize might thus be won by any boy in the school who within the sphere of his duties showed himself the most deserving. When he came again,—indeed he would be there many times before the next examination,—but when he came again to distribute the prizes next year, it would give him great pleasure to present the new prize he proposed to offer.

The CHIEF JUSTICE then begged to say a few words. He had been there on former occasions but he had never seen so satisfactory a display as had been made that day. He expressed particular satisfaction at the announcement which had been made by the Governor that the school was to be open to all and not only to Chinese. There might be some difficulties in carrying out the new arrangement, but Mr. Stewart's who had brought the school to its present state would certainly be able to overcome these. He expressed the obligations of the community to His Excellency the Governor for his presence there that day and for the determination he expressed to support public education in the colony.

Dr. Legge then made a speech to the boys in Chinese explaining the nature of the prize which had been promised by the Governor, and the proceedings came to an end.

Government Notification.

From the Gazette.

His Excellency Sir Richard Graves MacDonnel having reason to think, that many Chinese labor under a mistaken notion that they cannot apply direct to the Registrar General, who is also Protector of the Chinese, when they have any grievance to redress or petition to present, reminds them that the office of the Registrar General is always open to the Chinese, and that Officer is most ready and willing to forward petitions to the Governor and to bear statements made to him by Chinese. Neither the Registrar General nor the Governor will send replies to any communication not signed by the actual petitioner, nor will such replies be sent to any party but the petitioner himself. It is the wish of the Governor, as it is the interest also of the Chinese, that the latter should avail themselves, as far as possible, of the means afforded by Government, for enabling them to communicate directly with the Registrar General, and His Excellency hopes they will see the advantage of so doing.

JAPAN:

By the French mail from Shanghai, we have received Yokohama papers of January 16th but the intelligence is very meagre. The Herald says:—

Our New Year has opened very quietly, and there seems to be a general lassitude over the place, difficult to move. We believe, however, that this state of things must give place to something brighter after the Japanese New Year now close at hand.

A move is now on the board, that, if made, will prove a very long stride in the political game, now being played in Japan. The Tycoon has invited the Foreign representatives to visit him in Osaca; if the invitation is accepted, most likely the opportunity will be seized to settle the great question of opening Hiogo. At present nothing is definitely determined, but we fully expect to be able to give further intelligence upon the subject in a few days.

On Tuesday last, one of the Tycoons nephews, Matsudaira Bouzen on Kami, visited the arsenal at Yokosika.

On his return in the evening, he dined with H. E. Monsr. Leon Roches.

Wednesday morning he visited H.I.M. S. Guerriere and having witnessed several manœuvres that he had never seen before, he embarked with H. E. the French Minister, on board the Kien-Chan to return to Yeddo.

Police Intelligence, January 25th.

BEFORE F. W. MITCHELL, Esq.

LARCENY.

Yuo-akoi a very dirty unshorn looking animal, was brought up on suspicion of stealing a pair of trousers, the property of Leung-ayin, a married woman.

Prosecutrix said that she lives in the third floor of a house near the West Point station and yesterday missed a pair of trousers from her room. Prisoner occupies the adjoining apartment and from information received from her daughter, a little girl of four years old, she had prisoner arrested, the property was not found in his possession.

P. C. Henry Paton stated that he was informed by the woman of her loss and her suspicions; he searched prisoner's room and failed to find the property, but discovered a hat which has been obtained by another man who is not present, prisoner is also an old offender.

Henry Manning, turnkey in the gaol, identified prisoner as having been one of his patients on a former occasion, and His Worship told prisoner that although the charge of larceny he had been proved against him, still it was evident that he was a bad character and should go to gaol for one month as a rogue and vagabond, and His Worship further strongly recommended a prisoner to leave the colony as soon as possible after the expiration of his sentence.

A REGULAR FUMBLE.

Lum-moon, described as a hawker, was charged with hawking fish without a license.

P. C. 3 2 deposed to arresting prisoner this morning in the Central Market, and Inspector Langdon stated that when brought to the charge room prisoner told him that he had a stall in the market, on being asked for his license he replied that it was at his stall, he was then sent down with the constable who accosted him to produce this license but on arrival at the market said that it was quite a mistake, his stall was in the Western Market, the constable however was not to be gulled again and brought him back to the charge room.

Prisoner now stated that he only arrived in the colony yesterday, and had bought a business from another man but had not had time as yet to register himself.

His Worship was of opinion that prisoner was an unmitigated liar and fined him $3, recommending him to get himself licensed as quickly as possible if he intended to remain in the colony.

HOMICIDE AT THE STONE QUARRIES AT KOWLOON.

Two men were brought before the court charged by the Government lessee of the stone quarries at Kowloon with taking stone from his quarries without having obtained a license from him for so doing. He stated that on taking charge of the monopoly he allowed fifteen days to the stone cutters to remove whatever stone they had already quarried, he had had considerable trouble with people since then and brought several men to court. Yesterday while walking on the water-side at Kowloon he saw a large heap of stone which was not there the previous day and must have been cut from his quarries, prisoners were directing the shipment of this stone into boats; he also brought forward as witness Henry Philbianc, employed by him to watch the quarries, who substantiated the previous statement; this witness allowed that it was possible that the stone alluded to might have come from elsewhere even from Singapore, but this was highly improbable, of course it was impossible to swear to the identity of a piece of stone but there was every reason to suppose that this had been taken from the quarries which witness is employed to look after, a large quantity having been removed within the last few days.

Prisoners allowed that the stone was taken from the Kowloon quarries and stated that it had been got more than a year ago but they had not removed it before as they could not find a purchaser for it.

His Worship said that the lessee who paid a large sum to Government for his monopoly, must be protected, and to let all people in Kowloon know that they must apply to him for a license before quarrying or removing any stone, he would in this instance inflict a fine of $3 on each of the prisoners.

CUTTING A CABLE.

Four boat boys were charged with cutting the cable and attempting to steal the anchor from a licensed cargo boat at anchor in the harbour last night.

Wong-ayung stated that this morning at about one o'clock his boat was anchored off the Sy-ing-pun wharf and happening to turn out, he saw the fourth prisoner attempting to cut his cable, he called out "thief" and shortly after marda a police boat came up and prisoners were arrested, prisoner was in a small sampan into which he had fished up the bight of the cable and was cutting it when witness observed him, he does not know why the police arrested the other three boys as he did not see them at all.

The fourth prisoner denied the charge and said he was just returning from having landed a passenger when he was arrested by the police boat, but was unable to bring forward any evidence to substantiate this statement.

His Worship said that there was no evidence against the first three prisoners he should therefore discharge them but he had no doubt in his own mind, but the fourth prisoner was guilty of the charge brought against him, he should therefore send him to gaol for one month with hard labour, and at the expiration of that time prisoner must pay $1 as amends for the damage done to prosecutor's cable, failing in this, to remain in gaol for seven days' more.

PIRACY AND MURDER.

Wong-ngo, described as a boatman, was charged with piracy and murder on board the French brig Jeanne de Joseph in the Lyee-moon pass on the 16th of January 1866.

Mr. Deane, acting Superintendent of police stated, that from information received he brought the present charge against the prisoner but was not yet prepared with the evidence, he therefore requested a remand as he had good reason to believe that he shall be able to bring home the charge to the prisoner.

His Worship granted a remand to February 1st proximo.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.

Fresh Telegrams from Europe.

By the P. & O. steamer Sunda just arrived with dates from Calcutta to the 7th we have some fresh telegrams from London to the 21st of December. They are as follows:—

LONDON, 19th December.

Plenipotentiaries of the German States have met at Berlin. Court of Chancery, have ordered a dividend of 4s. to be paid in Overend, Gurney and Co.'s liabilities. The Times has published a letter, signed J. R. S. defending Sir William Mansfield, and declaring him bound to act upon his own belief and not that of others. In commenting on this letter, the Times says, there is no doubt, Sir William Mansfield believed Captain Jervis guilty, but, as prosecutor and complainant, he was bound to subordinate his own belief to that entertained by independent and unprejudiced persons. The Court of Chancery sanctions the arrangements entered into for the resuscitation of Agra and Masterman's Bank. The plan for re-organizing the army in France is unpopular.

20th December.

A meeting, convened by the Bishop of London, has decided upon a memorial to the late Bishop of Calcutta, by permanently establishing endowed schools.

21st December.

Sir Garian Diet has voted an address. Tonello has been well received by the Pope. Maximilian has declared he will not abdicate. American representatives have passed a Bill excluding those States which are unrecognized by present Congress.

Dangerous Assault on an Inspector of Police.

Nineteen Malay seamen, mostly unemployed, were charged on Saturday at the Police Court before F. W. Mitchell, Esq. with committing a violent assault on Inspector Grimes.

Mr. Grimes, stated that last night he was on special duty to the Westward with three Chinese constables, returning to the charge room at about half past ten through Hollywood Road with a prisoner in custody he heard a great disturbance in Lascar Row; he left one taking to conduct the prisoner to the charge room and went down to Lascar Row to find out the cause of the disturbance; he there saw two Malays fighting with a crowd of about sixty gathered round them witness separated the combatants who are the 8th and 7th prisoners, he arrested the sixth intending to bring him to the charge room but he escaped and ran into Lower Lascar Row where he entered a house the other prisoners all following, witness was coming away satisfied that the row was stopped when some of the crowd cried out in English "kill the son of a b-h," witness recognises the 15th prisoner as one of those men, about forty of them then attacked him with bamboos and sticks, the 1st prisoner struck him on the head with the staff now produced, causing the wound now shown but there were so many of them that they could not properly get at him, they manoeuvred to give him some severe blows both with their fists and with sticks, the wound inflicted by the first prisoner was about half an inch long and pretty deep, it bled considerably, the 19th prisoner also struck at him with a large bamboo and in trying to save his head witness received a violent blow on the right hand taking off the skin of his knuckles; he managed to make his escape from them but they followed, pelting him with bottles, pieces of broken pot &c but fortunately none of these missiles struck him, witness called out "police" loudly as he came into Queen's Road and some constables came, they then returned and arrested the first five prisoners; during the affray they all raised a regular shout of "kill him! kill him," witness was afraid that they would have used their knives; to himself arrested the first prisoner in the act of running away.

Mahomed Arab, keeper of a boarding house in Lascar Row, was in his own house at about half past ten last night in an upstair room, he suddenly heard a great noise in the street and came down to see what was the matter, he saw Inspector Grimes and about fifty Malays fighting, he saw the Inspector attempt to separate them and arrest one of them who however got away and the whole lot of them set upon the Inspector with sticks like that in court bamboos and window stanchions, witness identifies the 1st, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th prisoners as some of the men who assaulted the Inspector, witness himself arrested the 8th and 7th prisoners and handed them over to the police, if it had not been for himself, witness thinks the Inspector (Grimes) would have been almost killed; the 6th and 7th prisoners had assaulted instead of a constable they would have laid themselves open to imprisonment for twelve months. Mahomed Arab was then recalled and His Worship told him that he was aware that he was a long resident in this colony and amply endowed with wealth, otherwise he should have had no from hesitation in rewarding him from the funds at his disposal, as it was, however, he could only thank him for the activity he had displayed and the assistance he had given to the police in this matter.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

Hongkong, Saturday Evening.

The temporary improvement in some branches of trade noticed yesterday has continued to be felt to-day so far as to increase the volume of business, but the movement shows the present unhealthy condition that pervades commercial circles.

The extreme anxiety to realise on goods at a price that can hardly bring in a return of the investment to say nothing of a margin, clearly demonstrates that the present stagnation of our markets is not alone due to the approaching native festival season, but to embarrassments of a different and perhaps more serious nature. It also points to no very immediate revival in business and it would appear, that until our outstandings for speculations for the last season have been settled and closed up and the losses apportioned and distributed business here must continue to a degree uncertain and our market weak and fluctuating. The ruling prices of some staple manufactures are now in fact below the mark at home and while there, they are showing at present an upward tendency, here these already low prices are weak and declining and there is apparently a willingness on the part of some to meet any reasonable offer that will bring a return of cash. Each mail brings us more discouraging intelligence from home and it would seem that we are yet to hear the worst. Late accounts say in relation to the tea markets, trade continues unsatisfactory and notwithstanding a further decline in prices for all grades of Congou, the business transacted is limited and confined to the actual wants of the trade. The late imports showed in most instances ruinous loss, especially the black leaf kinds from Hankow and there was no denying the fact that this is in a great measure due to the priority of the Teas, owing to improper during and to the excessive quantities arriving at one time. A stroke has this year been dealt at the very vitals of the Chinese trade and until the paralyzing effects have been eradicated health and vigour cannot return.

There has been a good demand for all descriptions of drug tea-dust, resulting in a further advance in prices. The market closes firm at the following quotations, $800 for Paoni, $585 for Honaras, and $7.5 for Moiwa with few sellers. First Sales Patna is quoted at $600. The Cotton market has been comparatively active, but prices for Bengal staple are a shade lower. Sales are reported to have been made as low as $173 for good average staple. Transactions reported for good average staples, Transactions reported embrace 247 bales Bombay at $21 to $23.50, 200 bales Bengal at $

Two Libel Cases.

From the Spectator.

Two libel cases have recently been before Sir A. Cockburn, both of which are of some importance to the public. In the one the plaintiff tried to limit the right of political, in the other that of personal comment. Mr. Doulton, the member for Lambeth, is, as our readers know, one of the few independent members who accompanied Mr Lowe and the Eldest Sons into the Cave of Adullam, a proceeding for which the Telegraph abused him pretty roundly. The abuse would probably have passed unnoticed, or scarcely noticed, but that the Telegraph, aware that impact is modified by the hardness of the thing struck, and knowing its readers' heads to be unusually thick, has adopted a peculiarly "hardhitting" style, which reads very much like the roll of a badly struck drum. Where we should say, for example, "Mr. Disraeli is another Bolingbroke," and the Times would say that "overscrupulousness is not Mr. Disraeli's embarrassment," the Telegraph would aver that Mr. Disraeli was a "political playwright, who perversely pursues patriotic principles to use them nefariously for nondescript results," or some odd humbuggery of that kind. As usual, it made a great point of alliteration in its article on Mr. Doulton and rang the changes on his principles and potteries until the unlucky member, who, like the Telegraph's audience, feels alliteration, became enraged, and rushed to the Queen's Bench, demanding that the publisher of the Telegraph should be put in prison, or suffer some other dread ill thing. The article, however, though exceedingly violent in tone, really meant nothing except that Mr. Doulton was a political turncoat, and the Chief Justice perceiving that, told plaintiff compendiously that he must not be so thin-skinned, and refused his application. A publicist has a right to say that a politician is a turncoat, and the form in which he says it has nothing to do with the matter, a point which really wanted settling. Educated Englishmen loathe the rhetorical bombast in which half-educated men just now clothe their meaning, till they forget that the force of words is measured by their force in the ears of the audience, that Mr. Leicester, the glassblower's flaming sentences, so terrible to the members of the Athenæum, meant to the members of a "free-and-easy" nothing, except that the speaker thought the House of Commons a little muddled up. The Oxford-Street tradesman who advertises, or did recently advertise, "gravity-selected potatoes," only meant potatoes sorted by weight, and when the Telegraph says Mr. Doulton is a traitor it only means that Mr. Doulton has not adhered to his pledges. This fancy for false rhetoric is not natural to Englishmen, who speak among themselves with great plainness, and will die away or mean become more accustomed to discussion, and meanwhile it is absurd to lay so much stress on mere form.

The second case is of a very different kind, but involved a question of the highest social importance. If ever the English press is placed under fetters it will be for using its power tyrannically against private persons, and it is absolutely essential that its rights and duties in this respect as defender of the public should be defined and enforced. This is the more important while its character stands so high, because its general reputation lends such immense weight to its imputations. If the New York Herald accused Mr. Sumner, say of habitually eating his children, the accusation would carry little weight, but if the Times accused Mr. Disraeli of theft, quite as improbable a charge, it would be for hours believed. Dean Alford talked nonsense about the press the other day, when he said it "did write down anybody;" but it is true that it could stare down, if such a phrase be possible, almost anybody. If the Times called Dr. Blank "a notorious impostor" in the morning, and the Pall Mall Gazette said he threatened people in the evening, and the Saturday Review remarked on Saturday that a whole crew of Dr. Blanks were trading on the public, Dr. Blank would be simply ruined. He might as well have been sentenced by a Star Chamber, or been arrested by a Russian Government, or been suspected of Fenianism, or have endured any other unusual and dreadful calamity. It is absolutely essential to prevent that kind of tyranny, and yet it is still more essential to leave journalists the right of protecting the public from impostors and quacks and pretenders when they can. They can do this sometimes very effectively, a journal being able every now and then to speak just as college civic society would speak, if it acutely knew how. Unfortunately the law so far from allowing journalists to exercise this function over readily, as most persons imagine, is almost unwarrantably rigid in repression. For example, it is the most difficult thing in the world to warn the public off bubble undertakings. A journalist may know absolutely that such and such an undertaking is a swindle, or that it can never succeed, or that its success is not intended by its promoters, yet finds it nearly impossible to warn its readers. The bank, or "financial," or manufacturing company being careless of costs, would instantly attack the paper, and juries, who are much more sensitive about property than character, would give ruinous damages. The Economist, for example, stated a week or two since that it could have warned the public about the position of Overend Gurney and Co., but if it had the damages would most assuredly have exceeded the fee-simple of the paper. The protective power is just as important in the case of impostors, and more especially impostors in medicine. The Times, which has never forgotten, and never will forget, the Dr Bourbel case, does occasionally warn us against swindlers, begging-letter writers, and the like, but the injury caused by quack doctors is of infinitely greater moment.

We believe that Dr. Forbes Winslow's book—and we are not classing him among quacks—did immense mischief in that way, man confounding the symptoms of overwork with those of incipient insanity. He is no terrorist, we believe, but any man pretending to his knowledge might easily, in the way we have indicated, have established a reign of terror, and made, perhaps, an enormous fortune. It is quite expedient that the press should be enabled to put down this mode of extortion, more especially when the practitioner appeals openly to the public against the verdict of the profession. This may be done mistakenly, as we are bound to presume it was done in Dr. Hunter's case; but if it is honestly done, on strong primâ facie evidence that the object of the physician is quacks, and not cures, evidence which exists whenever an unusual fee is demanded, the law ought not to prohibit the attempt. This seems to have been the case with the Pall Mall Gazette. Dr. Hunter's advertisements looked to ordinary observers just like attempts at terrorism, and it was quite fair to say so in plain words. If doctors will appeal to the public like politicians they must take the public's verdicts like politicians and like the member for Lambeth, not "he too thin-skinned." The language used was perhaps too violent, and the allusion to a half tried accusation was out of place; but taking the general principle fairly into consideration, the verdict of the jury giving one farthing damages just met the justice of the case.

Passengers cross the Isthmus by the Panama R. R. 47½ miles, to Aspinwall, where a track is laid upon the Co's. dock to the Ship's side. From Aspinwall the ships for New York Steam across the Caribbean Sea to the Eastward of Jamaica, and between Cuba and St. Domingo, and passing smaller islands to the North, emerge into the open Atlantic. New York lies in the most direct route from Aspinwall to Europe, just as San Francisco is in the nearest track a ship can follow between Hongkong and Panama.
